

Twinkle, the Little Star

Far, far away in the big night sky, there was a tiny star named Twinkle. Twinkle was the most minor star in the sky, but she had the most significant, brightest heart.

Every night, the stars would shine together, making the sky sparkle. But Twinkle wished she could shine as brightly as the big stars. "I want to glow and twinkle like them!" she said.

One evening, the Moon smiled down at Twinkle. "Little star," the Moon said, "you shine in your special way. Even the tiniest light can brighten the night."

Twinkle listened and smiled. She twinkled her little light happily. Down on Earth, a sleepy child looked up and saw her.

"Look, Mama! That little star is winking at me!" the child said joyfully.

Twinkle felt warm inside. She might be small, but she made someone happy. From that night on, she twinkled with pride, knowing that even a little star could shine bright.

The End.
